DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. OBJECTION

The abstract of the disclosure is objected to because it contains references to the drawings which obscure the purpose of the Abstract. Correction is required. See MPEP § 608.01(b), which is duplicated here for Applicant's convenience:

(b) A brief abstract of the technical disclosure in the specification must commence on a separate sheet, preferably following the claims, under the heading "Abstract" or "Abstract of the Disclosure." The sheet or sheets presenting the abstract may not include other parts of the application or other material. The abstract in an application filed under 35 U.S.C. 111 may not exceed 150 words in length. The purpose of the abstract is to enable the United States Patent and Trademark Office and the public generally to determine quickly from a cursory inspection the nature and gist of the technical disclosure.<

Applicant is reminded of the proper content of an abstract of the disclosure.

A patent abstract is a concise statement of the technical disclosure of the patent and should include that which is new in the art to which the invention pertains. If the patent is of a basic nature, the entire technical disclosure may be new in the art, and the abstract should be directed to the entire disclosure. If the patent is in the nature of an improvement in an old apparatus, process, product, or composition, the abstract should include the technical disclosure of the improvement. In certain patents, particularly those for compounds and compositions, wherein the process for making and/or the use thereof are not obvious, the abstract should set forth a process for making and/or use thereof. If the new technical disclosure involves modifications or alternatives, the abstract should mention by way of example the preferred modification or alternative.

The abstract should not refer to purported merits or speculative applications of the invention and should not compare the invention with the prior art.

Where applicable, the abstract should include the following:

- (1) if a machine or apparatus, its organization and operation;
- (2) if an article, its method of making;
- (3) if a chemical compound, its identity and use;
- (4) if a mixture, its ingredients;
- (5) if a process, the steps.

Extensive mechanical and design details of apparatus should not be given.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith et al. (US patent 6,430,496-B1, hereafter Smith) in view of Dispensing The Future (Electronic Payments International, May 1997, n 119, p. 12 & ff., hereafter EPI).

Re. Claims 1-19, Smith discloses a system for controlling vehicles to provide transportation services without need for human intervention. Smith discloses a remote terminal (col 3, lines 15-16) that allows a customer to request a transport service (col 3, lines 12-16), means for relaying a request to an operator (col 3, lines 22-30), the terminal identifies the customer through an interaction with the terminal via a unique feature associated with the customer (5, lines 4-7), a keypress would signify an instruction to request a transport service (claim 42). It would further be inherent in the system that it would know the location of the terminals. Smith further discloses debiting the fee due from a customer account (col 21, lines 32-36). Smith further discloses having an operator of the machine (col 5, lines 8-11), using a computer to store different transport operators (database 10), it would be implicit that the operator would select the appropriate service as Smith discloses a database with services and further, this shows that the ATM operator is different from the transportation operator, and it would be implicit that there would be means for transmitting back to the ATM a confirmation otherwise the user would not know if the request had been processed. Smith does not, however, teach having an Automated Teller Machine (ATM) as being used for the service. Dispensing discloses using ATMs as remote terminals for providing transportation services. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the disclosures of Smith with those of EPI by using ATMs as taught by EPI since ATMs are virtually ubiquitous in modern countries such as the United States and the United Kingdom for extensive access to the services being offered.
